

Psychology for Language Learning Insights from Research, Theory and Practice

Edited by Sarah Mercer, Stephen Ryan and Marion Williams

Contributors: NEIL J ANDERSON | ANDREW D. COHEN LUCY COOKER | JEAN-
MARC DEWAELE | JOSEPH FALOUT
YOSHIFUMI FUKADA | TETSUYA FUKUDA | TAMMY GREGERSEN CAROL
GRIFFITHS | PEI-HSUAN (PEGGY) | PETER MACINTYRE
NAOKO MORITA | TIM MURPHEY | RICHARD PEMBERTON
EMA USHIODA | LINDY WOODROW | TOMOKO YASHIMA

Offering a timely snapshot of current theory and research in the field of psychology in foreign language learning, this book is accessible to both specialists and non-specialists. Each chapter focuses on a different psychological construct and provides an overview of current thinking in the area drawing on insights from educational psychology.

SARAH MERCER Lecturer at the University of Graz, Austria. Her research interests include all aspects of language learner psychology, in particular, affect, beliefs, mindsets and the self. Recently she has become especially interested in complexity perspectives on these areas. She is also the author of the book Towards an Understanding of Language Learner Self-concept.

STEPHEN RYAN Associate Professor in the School of Economics at Senshu University, Tokyo, Japan. He is interested in all aspects of language learning psychology, but especially issues of learner motivation and identity connected to the role of English as a language of globalization.

MARION WILLIAMS was formerly Reader in Applied Linguistics at the University of Exeter, UK, where she co-ordinated the post-graduate programmes in TESOL. She is interested in all aspects of psychology in language learning. Her research interests include motivation, attributions and teacher education. She is the joint author of Psychology for Language Teachers: A Social Constructivist Approach.

CONTENTS

Foreword; Z.Dörnyei | Introduction; S.Mercer, S.Ryan & M.Williams | Self-concept: Situating the Self; S.Mercer | Identity: The Situated Construction of Identity and Positionality in Multilingual Classrooms; N.Morita | Personality: Personality Traits as Independent and Dependent Variables; J.M.Dewaele | Motivation: L2 Learning as a Special Case?; E.Ushioda | Implicit Theories: Language Learning Mindsets; S.Ryan & S.Mercer | Attribution: Looking Back and Ahead at the 'Why' Theory; P.H.Hsieh | Affect: The Role of Language Anxiety and Other Emotions in Language Learning; P.MacIntyre & T.Gregerson | Willingness to Communicate: Momentary Volition that Results in L2 Behaviour; T.Yashima | Strategies: The Interface of Styles, Strategies and Motivation on Tasks; A.D.Cohen | Learning Styles: Traversing the Quagmire; C.Griffiths | Metacognition: Awareness of Language Learning; N.J.Anderson | Goal Orientations: Three Perspectives on Motivation Goal Orientations; L.Woodrow | Self-directed Learning: Concepts, Practice and a Novel Research Methodology; R.Pemberton & L.Cooker | Group Dynamics: Collaborative Agency in Present Communities of Imagination; T.Murphey, J.Falout, Y.Fukada & T.Fukuda | Conclusion: Final Remarks; S.Mercer, S.Ryan & M.Williams | Glossary

August 2012

Hardback
Paperback

£60.00
£19.99

978-0-230-30114-6
978-0-230-30115-3

Available as ebook

